An attribute panel will allow you to apply attribute groups in bulk to a product. The would be used when you know that you will be using the same attribute groups for various products. For instance, all apparel items in this store have the sizes, colors, and fabric attributes.

Applying these will populate the product attributes with all options of these filled out.

** Need to expand on this thought more, but basically adding this template could basically automatically add products with all possible variations based on the values.
